LADIES' VISITING CARDS AT THE INDEX-TRIBUNE OFFICE

The Return Of Gypsy.

By ADDISON HOWARD GIBSON.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

In the amethystine haze of an April morning on the Arizona foothills the cowboys of Circle H wheeled their broncbos into the gray dust of the trail.

There was a wild jangle of spurs, a clatter of restive hoofs, and they were off like one of the brown whirlwinds of their own desert to meet Gypsy and "the boss," who were coming to the ranch to spend a week.

They had derisively hurled "Arlos, Layne!" at the bronzed young foreman as he leaned against the corral gate. They could not understand why he had persistently refused to join their reception committee.

It really was not the coming of Herington, "the boss," that was calling forth the unusual demonstration, but the return of Gypsy, their little comrade of the range, whom they had not seen for four years. It never entered their simple heads that two years of school in France, followed by two more of travel and society, might have changed their merry, fun loving little pet.

She was coming back as she had promised—that was the dominant consideration—and off they went, whooping.

Ned Layne, however, knew differently. He had seen her a year ago, and the knowledge had come to him then. She was a young lady, and they—and he—were only cowboys. As he leaned against the gate he thought of the old days. He remembered her eyes and voice on the evening before she departed into the world, and he remembered how she had said to him:

"Goodby, Ned. Father is going to give you the place of foreman. Make the most of your opportunities and buy out the Bar T. Don't forget me, Ned," and her eyes had been moist when she suddenly dropped them.

"I'll never forget you, Gypsy," he had promised stoutly, pressing the hand that fluttered in his.

"When I come home to the ranch I want you to be here to meet me," she added.

"I'll be sure to meet you," he returned. Then the train had borne her away to the new life, so different from that among the boys on her father's ranch.

Ned Layne and Gypsy Herington had been great comrades in those care free days, and if now he was the only one not riding out to meet her it was because he felt that those old days were gone forever and would best be forgotten. There should be nothing on his part to remind her of old promises and old thoughts that could have no place in her life any more.

Just a year ago Layne had seen her once at a great hotel in New York, where the wealthy ranchman and his daughter were stopping. He had gone all the way to the far eastern city for no other purpose than to see her, but the result had been a sadly discouraging one, and he had said farewell to his dreams. Gypsy, dressed in a bewildering gown and moving with bewildering ease and elegance among the elegant throng that oppressed the ranchman, was on her way to the opera under escort of an immaculately clad young Englishman possessed of a big title, and Layne was left to be entertained by her father.

She had asked him to come back and breakfast with them, but her changed bearing and the cool treatment accorded to him by the condescending nobleman had nettled Layne. He took the very next train back to the land of sunshine, where people were not proud and stuck up and did not forget old friends.

On his return the cowboys of Circle H had besieged him eagerly for news of their little chum of the ranch.

"Yes, I saw her," he answered, veiling the bitterness in his heart, "and she's a great belle in her society togs. She has a beau, Lord Percy Ellington, one of those plug hatted chaps, and she seems to like his attentions all right. The boss says he followed them back from Europe."

Having imparted this information to the news hungry men, Ned had gone off by himself under the starlight and finally abandoned all his old plans and hopes.

Ever since that night the young man had been formulating a plan for his future which he kept strictly to himself, resolved to execute the first step toward it when the owner of the ranch returned to his own again. Accordingly he mounted Muggins, his own pony, and rode rapidly away across the brown mesa before the party could arrive.

From an eminence his well trained eyes caught the blur of rising dust far up the trail. Nearer approach enabled him to recognize the ranch buckboard driven by Bob Cat Nick. Seated by the driver was the trim figure of Gypsy, while the stout form of Herington and a slender man wearing a derby occupied the back seat. Trailing behind or galloping proudly on either side of the vehicle rode the adoring cowboys, chatting merrily with their old friend.

At sight of the derby hat a frown crossed Ned's face, and, putting spur to the unoffending Muggins, the disgruntled young horseman rode off down the gulch.

"Ellington along!" he exclaimed. "Yet what right have I to be surprised or care for [illegible] No doubt Herington [illegible] law what a fine ranch he has for his daughter."

When he had reached the live oak thicket quite a distance away he let Muggins rest. Throwing himself upon the ground, he surrendered his mind to a train of miserable thoughts.

He had lain there a long time, when suddenly he was aroused from his bitter reflections by the clatter of hoofs over the rocky trail.

Pushing back his sombrero from his eyes, he looked up into the smiling face of Gypsy, seated upon Slap Dash her favorite pony.

"And this is the way you keep your promise?" she said reproachfully.

He scrambled to his feet and, throwing one arm across the saddle on his pony's back, leaned there till he could summon self mastery.

"What do you care, Gypsy?" he finally interrogated, his eyes stubbornly refusing to meet hers.

Some of the brightness left the girl's face as she noted the misery on his.

"Tell me what it all means, Ned," she begged. "Why are you not yourself? Why do I find you so changed?"

"Changed? Heavens!" and he could not forbear a gesture of impatience. "You"—

"Here," she interrupted in the scolding tone of her privileged girlhood, "we come all the way from New York to pay you a visit at Circle H, arrive and find this on the table," and she held up a letter. "What do you mean by resigning? Why do you want to leave father's ranch? He is wild over it and sent me to find you."

"I should think Ellington might object to your riding after me," he remarked, his bronze cheeks reddening with scorn.

"Ellington?" Then a light broke over her face. "That funny lord? Why, Lord Percy is in England long ago. Finding me too loyal an American to buy a foreign title, he ended the long siege and departed."

"Who came with you and your father, then?" he inquired.

"Oh, that was Cousin Cyril, who is just out of college and needs the tonic of our mountain air."

Slipping lightly from the back of Slap Dash, she came over to Ned and in her old way put both hands on his strong young shoulder.

"Now, Ned," she said, "you won't leave Circle H, will you? Father needs you."

"Why did you treat me as you did in New York?" he moodily demanded, evading the question.

"Before a stranger—and Lord Percy at that?" asked she, laughing roguishly. "If, sir, you had come to breakfast next morning, I—I might have treated you otherwise."

He turned, facing her squarely. With one of his strong hands he imprisoned both of hers and held them against his breast.

"What would you have done if—if I had come?" he said breathlessly.

Her lovely face went very crimson under the searchlight of his eyes, but she answered bravely, "Ned, I'd have kissed you right out."

The foothills looked natural again. The sun shone with its old time glint and shimmer upon the gray desert sand. He had no longer the feverish desire to get away to fresh scenes.

"I'll stay at Circle H always, Gypsy, since you wish it," and, taking his written resignation from her, he tore it into fragments. "Say, sweetheart," he added, putting an arm tenderly round her waist, "I'll buy out Bar T tomorrow, and we'll run both ranches together."

A MISNAMED EXHIBIT.

Brings Joy to the Museum Visitors and Worries the Curator.

A curator at the Metropolitan Museum of Art is threatened with insanity, the cause being a small misnamed exhibit in the gallery outside his office door.

"Twenty times a day," declared the harassed man, "people discover that that china statuette out in the Franklin collection is named General Washington instead of Benjamin Franklin. Then they burst in here and announce their discovery and wonder that no one ever noticed it before. Half my time is spent in explaining that we know it well, that it was simply a mistake of the potter who labeled it in France over a century ago and that we cannot change it nor wouldn't if we could.

"Of course I tell them this courteously and patiently, and you know what a strain that is when you are going over the same thing for the thousandth time! I'd latch the door, only there are too many employees seeking me all day long, so here I must sit and listen to the names of George Washington and Benjamin Franklin repeated a million times till I wish that neither of those glorious patriots had ever lived. And it's driving me insane, I tell you; it's driving me insane'"

Just then the door opened and a lady popped in with:

"There's a statue out here named General Washington, but I'm sure"—

And the weary curator, being a southerner, rose smilingly to his task.—New York Times.

Hotel Bills In England.

The author of "Portugal Old and New" finds fault with English hotel keepers for using a printed form of bill on which the plain requirements of a simple traveler are lost amid a multitude of items. The result is that when a guest pays for a day's and a night's lodging he is positively almost ashamed at finding due registry of his having wanted neither liquors nor stationery nor warm baths nor douche baths nor shower baths nor pots of jam nor the hotel hairdresser and is apt to reflect what a poor shuffling impostor of a guest he is to have had so few requirements.

The General Demand
of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

The Subdivision of Sonoma's Acreage

The beauty and desirability of Sonoma Valley have long been sung and in the past ten years changes have been wrought which our pioneers perhaps never dreamed of. For commercial purposes Sonoma Valley has become a veritable harvest, for the climate, mineral springs and beauties have made it the most popular summer rendezvous in the State. For home-making and crop-raising it was long jealously guarded by the old land owners, but in recent years these settlers having become comfortably rich and ripe in years have given way to new residents and have either gone away only to come back and resettle or, as in many cases, have sold their valley places and built beautiful homes in town.

So, many of Sonoma's broad acres are finding their way into new hands and it is particularly fortunate when big holdings are subdivided and sold to the small farmer, for it is a well known fact that he is of greater advantage in the upbuilding of a community than the large land owner. We should like to see more such transactions as the transfer of the Hyde ranch to Umbsen & Co. The Hyde property comprises some of Sonoma Valley's choicest acreage and the enterprising firm which is putting it on the market in subdivisions report great demand for the farms. It is being sold on fair terms and only last Sunday eight prospective purchasers were brought up from San Francisco by Mr. Knewing of Umbsen & Co. to make selections in the tract. Booklets have been issued descriptive of the property and all this enterprise helps Sonoma Valley in solid upbuilding and progression. Let our praises be sung. We can show 'em Sonoma Valley never disappoints. All we need is the co-operation of the people with live realty concerns whose business it is to call attention to home sites and bring prospective investors in.

Personals.

The contract with the electric light company was renewed for another month, on motion of Trustee McDonell, seconded by Trustee Bates.

The application of G. Rancori for a license to conduct a saloon on First-street West near the railroad depot was granted on motion of Trustee Quartaroli which received a second from Trustee Bates.

On motion of Trustee McDonell seconded by Trustee Bates, City Clerk Small was instructed to advertise for bids for the city printing, all bids to be in the hands of that official not later than 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, July 21st.

The bill of F. T. Duhring for express charges was laid over until the next regular meeting.

The Board then adjourned until Wednesday evening, July 21st, at 8 o'clock.

Automobile Party Takes in Fight

An automobile party left here for San Francisco early Monday morning in Joe Racon's automobile to take in the Ketchel-Papke fight which took place in the afternoon in that city. The party consisted of Jas. Modini, Neil Trudgen, W. Marony, Paul Vannucci, Joe Keenan and Jas. Scheen. The boys made the round trip without mishap and report having had a fine trip. Referring to the fight, they pronounced the decision in favor of Ketchel as being "raw." They claim it should have been a draw.

Bicycle Collides With Bus

A lad named Rossi, son of the proprietor of Rossi's drug company of San Francico, met with a painful accident at El Verano last Wednesday. The youngster was mounted on a bicycle and while pedaling along Riverside avenue lost control of his wheel and collided with the French Cottage bus which he was attempting to pass. Young Rossi was thrown violently to the ground, spraining an ankle and injuring one of his hands. He was taken to Leix's sanitarium, where his injuries were attended to by Dr. Leix. The bicycle was completely wrecked.

LIVED HERE FOR NEARLY 60 YEARS

Mrs. A. B. Lubeck of Schellville Passed Away on Sundry Last

Mrs. A. B. Lubeck, founder of the Locust Grove School at Schellville, passed away last last Sunday at the age of 82 years.

Mrs. Lubeck came to this valley over 58 years ago from England, her place of nativity, and shortly after married Capt. Lubeck who passed away about twenty years ago. During her long residence in this valley she has lived and conducted her school in the same house built by herself and husband over half a century ago.

Mrs. Lubeck had no chidren of her own but was the foster mother of nineteen children, prominent among these being the Landsboroughs and Claytons.

Mrs. Lubeck was a woman of many noble traits of character and her whole life, which was a long and useful one, had been dedicated to the advancement of those whom she had taken under her protecting wing many years ago.

Mrs. Lubeck's remains were tenderly laid to rest in the Mountain Cemetery last Wednesday morning.

Jack Kelly and Paul Vannucchi left this morning for San Francisco where they will remain several days. By the way, dame rumor has it that Jack is engaged to an estimable young lady in the metropolis and will soon become a Benedick.

The attention of our readers is called to the ad of A. W. Weaver of El Verano, which appears elsewhere in these columns. Mr. Weaver is the pioneer blacksmith and machinist of El Verano, having located there years ago to get ahead of the boom, which has at last struck the lively little summer town and has caught up with him. Mr. Weaver is a first-class mechanic and we take pleasure in recommending him as such to the newcomers in the valley. He needs no recommendation to the old residents and patrons of his shop.

Painful Accidents.

Mrs. A. McHarvey fell and sprained a wrist one day this week. Dr. Hays attended to the injury, which was quite painful.

Little George Graham of Glen Ellen fell and fractured one of his feet one day this week. Dr. Hays attended the little chap and at latest accounts he was getting along nicely.

New Enterprise for Sonoma

A. Michelotti, junior member of Michelotti & Son, an old-time cigar firm of San Francisco, has rented the Dal Poggetto store on Napa street, adjourning H. P. Mr. Michelotti has come here with his wife and little daughter with the intention of residing in Sonoma permanently, and with that object in view will shortly build a home here.

SONOMA GRAMMAR SCHOOL TRUSTEES

Meet and Re-appoint Principal Prestwood and all of His Old Assistants

At a meeting of the Trustees of the Sonoma Grammar School, held last Saturday, an organization was perfected for another school term by re-electing Dr. A. M. Thomson chairman and Carl Dresel, clerk.

The question of employing teachers for the ensuing ten months term coming up for discussion, Principal Jesse Prestwood was re-elected at a salary of $130 per month. It was decided to make no change in his assistants, and Miss Minnie Cook, Miss Florence Murphy and Miss Ida Waterman were re-appointed at a salary of $80 per month each.

The coming school year will begin Monday, August 2nd, and continue to December 17th next when the first vacation will be taken. The school will again re-open on Monday, January 10th, 1910.

All the Trustees were present, to wit: Messrs. A. M. Thomson, Philip Bill and Carl Dresel.

Before adjourning the Trustees authorized a number of necessary repairs on the school building.

The re-appointment of Prof. Prestwood at an increased salary was a fitting acknowledgment of the splendid record he has made the past year as a teacher.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT ON KEARNS RANCH

Two Young Children of Senator and Mrs. Kearns Victims of Runaway in Los Guilicos Valley.

Miss Helen and Master Tommy Kearns, youngest children of ex-United States Senator and Mrs. Kearns of Salt Lake City, who have a couutry home in Los Guilicos, met with a serious accident on the ranch last Thursday afternoon. The children were driving a span of Shetland ponies hitched to a phaeton when the animals suddenly bolted and ran away. The phaeton, striking an obstruction during the mad flight of the ponies, was tipped over and completely demolished and Master Tommy and Miss Helen were hurled violently to the ground. The former struck on his head and was rendered unconsclous. It was some time before he could be revived. He suffered a number of larcerated wounds. His sister had a leg fractured and their little cousin, Master Wescott, whom they had invited to ride with them, was severely cut about the face.

The accident was witnessed by Senator Kearns, who had arrived from Salt Lake City only the day before.

Dr. Jesse of Santa Rosa was phoned for and jumping into his automobile was soon attending to the injuries of the children, who were getting along nicely yesterday.

NATIVE SONS CELEBRATE HERE

Stanford Parlor Hold Annual Outing at Boyes Springs--- Program Was Clever and Unique

The members of Stanford Parlor, San Francisco, prize parlor of Native Sons, held their Fourth of July outing at Boyes Springs again this year. So successful and pleasant was their last year's excursion to this valley that they decided to repeat the grand time and came to the big resort Saturday night, special cars being attatched to the regular Northwestern Pacific train.

After the party had been assigned rooms and dinner served, there was an impromptu burlesque show in the theater under the direction of A. F. Schleicher and Arthur Morgenstern, the versatile entertainers and arch fun promoters of the parlor. The entertainment consisted of a series of living pictures representing "Washington Crossing the Delaware," "Three Weeks," "Daniel in the Lion's Den," "Dinah's Quilting Party," "Sitting Bull's Harem," etc.

Sunday the day was given over to swimming and aquatic sports of all kinds for which valuable prizes were awarded. In the afternoon there was a base ball game between Stanford parlor's team and a team from Balboa parlor. The latter won, the score being 7-4.

In the evening there was a splendid banquet, President of the parlor, J. Conlan, presiding as toastmaster. There was a fine menu, speech-making and songs. Chairman Stanle of the arrangement committee, Judge Melvin and Edward Moran were among the speakers. Bert Minner, Arthur Morgenstern, Wm. Ogilvie and John Ford were the singers. The favors were huge firecrackers containing the after dinner drinks and the ladies of the party were presented with strings of candy firecrackers as souvenirs. At the conclusion of the banquet the Natives and their guests adjourned to the grounds where a brilliant pyrotechnic display was given, after which there was music and dancing.

Monday's celebration was the crowning feature of the affair. The parade and drill by the Variegated Guards under the able leadership of Colonel Filmer, the prominent Shriner, was a clever performance. It was an aggregation of burlesque conception of the world's great warriors. After the procession the literary exercises were held in the pavilion.

A bull's head breakfast, games and athletic contests terminated the celebration, the parlor returning to San Francisco on their special at 6:15 Monday evening.

The committee of arrangements consisted of the following genial and clever members of the parlor: Fred Stanle, chairman, A. F. Schleicher, Geo. Riccomi, A. W. Morgenstern, J. Smith, J. Greenberg and Fred Jung.

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R.V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

Why Hair Turns Gray.

The color of hair depends on little granules, which can be seen if the hair be examined under a powerful microscope. Sometimes the hair may become white in a night. Brown-Sequard tells us that when he was forty-five years old his beard turned white in two days. This took place when he was perfectly well and without any especial cause. Sometimes, however, sorow or illness produces the change earlier in life than it would usually take place. As to the cause, some have said that the hair becomes filled with small air particles which make it look gray. Others have said that the outer part of the hair becomes altered so that it is like ground glass and you cannot see the color. But a man of the name of Metchnikoff tells us that the real reason is because small movable bodies in the hair devour the grains of coloring matter and move them to the root of the hair. Sometimes poisons in disease or some results of sorrow bring about an effect upon these small migrating bodies (cells), causing them to become active in the above fashion. That is said to be the reason why the hair grows gray.—St. Nicholas.

Geographical Unity.

There are two tremendous moments in crossing the United States from east to west by way of Chicago, Omaha and Ogden. The first is when the bluffs of the Missouri suddenly dwindle away and the prairie rolls into sight with its ocean of tall corn, islanded with embowered homesteads, as if one swelling movement of the sea had been divinely caught and petrified and made fertile. And the second of these significant moments, more majestically pregnant with hidden meanings than the naked glories of Niagara or the arrogant cliffs of Yosemite, is when the ravines of the Sierra Nevada, with their ever green beauty of pine trees, broaden out on the valley of Sacramento and the hills recede beyond that magnificent plain. There and then you realize the perpetual and indissoluble relation of highland to lowland and perceive in the United States a more wonderful geographical unity than you might behold anywhere in Europe, where there is more variety and less majestic space.—Percy Vincent Donovan in Sunset Magazine.

Tiaras Made Over.

It may be realized by purchasers of diamond tiaras and the like that styles in settings change almost as frequently as in a woman's hat, and every other year at least must see the precious diadem rebuilt. This adds to original cost, for no self respecting jeweler changes the setting of a costly piece of jewelry without adding a few new stones to the first amount, thereby increasing its value. Of course famous crowns, with associations attached, that have recently come into the possession of very rich Americans remain as first designed, for even an American shows some sentiment when it costs him a fortune to indulge in rich historic jewels, but otherwise diamond and pearl and emerald tiaras are constantly made over.—Boston Herald.

WINNING AN UMBRELLA.

A Mistake That Brought a Surprise to Both Men Involved.

A Grand avenue merchant entered his store the other day with an umbrella in his hand and, sitting down on the nearest stool, burst into a roar of laughter. In response to queries as to the character of the joke the merchant said after a few minutes of hilarity:

"Well, you know, when I started out in the rain I had no umbrella. I worried along, debating whether I shouldn't invest, but was deterred by the thought that I already have three umbrellas kicking around somewhere. When I got over on East Water street, I spied a man I presumed to be Dick Wilson, an old friend of mine. The man I thought to be Dick was carrying a fine silk umbrella. 'It's mine now,' he added fondly as he gazed on the work of art he held in his hand.

"As soon as I saw the man I presumed to be Dick I was so overjoyed that I rushed on him from the rear and, slapping him hard on the back, exclaimed, 'Look here, old man, give me that umbrella!'

"The man turned, and, to my amazement, I discovered that he was not Dick, but some one I had never seen before. I was covered with confusion and was about to apologize when I observed that he was even more confused than I. He hastily closed the umbrella and pressed it into my hand with the remark:

"'I—I beg your pardon. I didn't know it was yours,' and vanished around the corner, leaving me standing with open mouthed astonishment."

After the outburst of merriment from the assembled clerks had subsided the merchant said:

"Well, I've got a fine, new umbrella anyway, and they say the second thief is the best owner."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

She Helped.

"Did she help you to propose?"

"Well, rather! She asked how many boxes of candy would pay for an engagement ring."—Detroit Free Press.
